Lily returns to Paris, hoping to ease the guilt over her fiance's death and to make amends with her estranged sister Natalie, a ballerina with the Boheme Ballet.

Lily finds herself becoming entangled with composer Yves. Lily has reasons for keeping Yves at arm's length but as he recounts the drama and intensity of the Ballets Russes, the magic of this Bohemian era ignites a spark within her.

Meanwhile, Natalie develops an unhealthy obsession. Lily fears for her sister's safety and sanity so when Natalie goes missing, she and Yves set out on a desperate quest across France to find her and, along the way, battle their own demons.
